The ship's company will consist of her captain, Vice-Commodore Bennett, and his four guests (Dr. Giovanni Ceccarini, Mr. Melvin Koapp, Mr. Lawrence Jerome, and Mr. A. Wright Sanford, all sincere levers of yachting, and familiar with the rules governing aquatic sports.) -The Washington correspondents say that the administration has at last taken a stand regarding the political situation in Tennessee and Virginia, where there are two Republican tickets in the field, the one Conservative and the other Radical. Of course, Grant decides to support the carpet bagger in Virginia, and the Radical who raised a rebel regiment in Tennessee. It is said that the matter was the subject of a Cabinet consultation, in which Mr. Bontwell declared that there could not be two Republican parties in this country, and that the only true one was that which was the most

-Boston gave a su cessful testimonial to Mr. Gilmore on Tuesday. The grand chorus numbered over 7000 voices, with an orchestra nearly equal to that during the Jubilee week. The programme embraced several of the most popular selections then given, and the enthusiasm manifested in the former representation was repeated to day. The Apvil Chorus, with the cannon and bell ringing accompaniment, and the Star Spangled Banner and other matri otic pieces were enthusiastically received. The grand chorus, "Old Handred," in which the entire audieuce, joined closed the performance. Mr. Gimore will realize about $25,000 from the

-Walker ahead and Wells drying up, is the cry from Virginia. The Charlottesville Chronicle says: "The same story comes from all parts of the State. The whites have gained on the blacks everywhere, and the white majority throughout the whole State has been largely moreseed. More than this, we hear from everywhere the same account that we have in Albemarie; those who were wavering between two opinions are giving in their adhesion to Walker, and the number of white men who will vote for Wells is being decreased day by day. Untiring efforts are being made at the same time to instruct the negroes, and show them that their interests are with their former masters in this struggle, and that the carpetbag demagogues are leading them on to de-

The Great Eastern will proceed no further than St. Pierre. From that point the cable will be taken up by the steamers Scanderie and Chiltern, which will land the shore end at Duxbury, Massachusetts, about the first of August. Duxbury is a town of four or five thousand inhabitants, in Plymouth County, thirty-six miles southeast of Boston. It is about six miles from the railroad station at Plymouth, and in consequence of its retired situation has hitherto been little known. As the western terminus of the Brest cable, however, the place will grow in importance.

> -"Old Ben Wade" is making an inspection of the Pacific Gailroad upon an original plan of his own. It will be an inspection as is an inspection, according to the account given by a delighted correspondent, who writes from Cheyenne. He says: "Mr. Wade is making an inspection of the Pacific road, and evidently is inspecting it. When the train is in motion. Mr. Wade sits at the door of the rear car and watches the track as if he had lost something valuable and expected every moment to discover it. Sixty miles above here, night coming on, Mr. Wade ordered the train to run on a siding and leave his car until morning, as he was determined to go over the road in day light. As soon as he could see, a special engine was sent up and attached to his car, and the old fellow, having properly adjusted his spectacles, set sail westward.

A Celebrity in Edgefield-Old John Brown's Right-hand Man.

Little, probably, do the good gentlefolk of Edgefield dream of the extent to which their fortunate county has been honored in the recent change of internal revenue officials in that division of the third collection district. We are told that the new appointee as Assistant Assessor is a "Mr. R "Realf, an Englishman," and our Edgefield contemporary, evidently ignorant of its special bliss, indulges in laudatory regrets over the removal of the late incumbent and has no word of cheer or welcome for the stranger who takes his place.

We know something of Mr. Richard Realf, and hasten to introduce him to our readers. Englishman, indeed, he is; but it was on the sacred soil of the Old Dominion, and in prominent connection with one of the most exciting events in the annals of that renowned commonwealth, that he first became known to fame. It is now more than ten years since the country was startled by the tidings that Old John Brown, with a few desperate followers, had made himself master of the United States armory at Harper's Ferry and madly raised the standard of servile revolt. Had the blow thus so boldly struck been followed by the chain of anticipated results, it was Brown's dream of power to have established great Black Republic, of which he himself was to be at once the creator and the dictator. Realf, at that time the shrewdest and most active as well as the youngest member of Brown's gang, had been formally singled out as the Secretary of State, in the organization of the projected government. We all know how the crazy scheme was throttled at its birth; how the ungrateful blacks failed to rally at the call of their Quixotic deliverer; and how, after a fair trial before a jury of Virginians, the miserable old -The Spanish journals are circulating a cu- fanatic, who perhaps was less guilty than most of his fellows, expiated his and their crime upon the gibbet. Realf, who was believed by many to have been the ruling spirit of the raid, was cunning enough to escape all serious consequences. Of his subsequent career little is known; but the versatility of his genius and his irrepressible impudence seem everywhere to have served him in good stead. We hear of him now as a hero hobnobbing with the Abelitionists of the North; now as a non-commissioned officer in the United States army at Fort Pickens; now as an office-seeker bashfully urging his claims as a loyalist and a soldier at Washington; and lastly as an Assessor of the Internal Revenue in the good old District of Edgefield South Carolina The day of chivalry indeed are gone, since Richard Realf, while the soul of his gaunt and grisly chief is still "marching on" in triumph, abandons the quest of glory for the quest of greenbacks.

"The Coolie Trade."

We print, this morning, an act of Congress, passed February 19, 1862, prohibiting what is known as the coolie trade. This act is commonly supposed to stand in the way of Chinese immigration to the United States, but a careful perusal of its provisions shows that it is only intended to prohibit the use of American vessels for carrying coolies from China "to any foreign country" to be disposed of or sold, or "transported for any term of years," "or for any time whatever, as servants or apprentices, or to be held to service or labor. In Section 4 it is expressly declared that nething in the act "shall be deemed, or construed, to apply to or affect any free and voluntary emigration of any Chinese subject, or to any vessel carr, ing such person as passenger on board the same;" and it appears to us that the act only relates to the shipment of coolies in American bottoms to foreign ports, there to be hired out or sold. And if the act did refer to the United States, our planters might still make contracts directly with the Chinese in China. as there would then be no "transfer" for a term of years within the meaning of Section

The intention of the act is, to us, very clear, and we publish it entire, that our readers may see that the law does not debar them from making contracts with Chinese immigrants, any more than it hinders them from making engagements with the Irish or German laborer. The "coolie trade" is very properly prohibited, but there is no interference with free and voluntary immigration.

The Cost of Importing Coolies.

Some time age one of our prominent shipping houses wrote to England to obtain some definite information in regard to the cost of shipping coolies from China to this side; and received in reply a letter, from "Regarding coolies we have the following

They say:

"Regarding emigration there would be no difficulty in sending forward any number of laborers under proper regulations, if the contracts entered into are considered reliable. Some have receatly gone to the West Indies. They cost an outlay of forty eight dollars per head for shipping, clothes and chow chow (tobacco) for the voyage; wages five and six dollars per month, agreement for five years, then to be returned to China. But the precise terms on which any particular contract can be made cannot be ascertained until details are with us. The regulations here are very strict and full care taken of the coolie's interest. A vessel would have to be chartered, which could be easily done here. Full authority with terms of contract would have to be sent out, with proof of their being binding under the law of the country they were carried out in, and bank credits for above advance per head, stores, medicine, doctor, &c.; passage or charter money could be made pavable on arrival."

We may add that the cost per head, for shipping and rations, from Hong Kong to Charleston, would not exceed the rate to the West Indies
